

PAREX USA WeatherFlash

Liquid Flashing & Joint Filler

Parex USA, Inc. - Anaheim, California

Dominus Innovations, working closely with PAREX USA product marketing and engineering, developed a custom liquid applied sealant for PAREX based on Dominus proprietary STPE technology. The new product, designed to be applied to exterior wall assemblies as part of the PAREX WeatherTech air and water barrier system, is unique in that it incorporates the characteristics of both liquid flashing and joint filler in a single platform.

After months of PAREX lab testing, the new formulation product branded “WeatherFlash,” was approved for production. This all-in-one combination liquid flashing and joint filler technology plays a critical role in the Parex WeatherTech system where the custom blended STPE liquid applied technology is designed to bridge dissimilar materials and to create weather resistant, fully adhered pan membranes in window and door installations. The product can also be used to flash and seal sheathing joints, fastener points and building wall penetrations such as beams, pipes, utility boxes, etc. “WeatherFlash” bonds to most construction materials, such as aluminum, brick, concrete, wood, vinyl, exterior gypsum board and various other construction substrates.
